

Common Vastu Mistakes People Make and How to Fix Them

Vastu Shastra, the ancient Indian science of architecture, emphasizes creating harmony between the elements of nature and your living space. When applied correctly, Vastu can bring peace, health, prosperity, and success. However, many people unknowingly make mistakes when designing or organizing their homes and offices, leading to blocked energy, stress, and career or health issues.

In this article, we'll discuss some common Vastu mistakes and provide easy-to-follow remedies to correct them without major renovations.

1. Incorrect Main Entrance Placement

The main entrance is the most important part of your home as it's the gateway for energy to enter. Placing it in the wrong direction can bring negative energy, financial instability, or obstacles.

Mistake:

- Having the entrance in the southwest, which can attract negativity.
- Cluttered or poorly maintained entrances.
- Doors facing a staircase or mirror, causing energy to reflect outward.

How to Fix It:

- Place a Vastu pyramid or mirror inside the home to balance energy if the entrance is in an inauspicious direction.
- Keep the entrance clean, well-lit, and uncluttered.

- Hang protective symbols like Om, Swastika, or Trishul near the entrance to ward off negativity.

Pro Tip: Add plants near the entrance to invite positive energy and fresh vibes.

2. Wrong Kitchen Placement

The kitchen represents the fire element in Vastu, which governs energy and health. Placing the kitchen in the wrong direction can lead to health problems and financial instability.

Mistake:

- Kitchen located in the north or northeast.
- The stove and sink placed close together, causing a clash between the fire and water elements.

How to Fix It:

- Place a red object (such as a candle or vase) to strengthen the fire element if your kitchen is in the wrong direction.
- Ensure a minimum gap between the stove and sink to balance fire and water energies.
- Ideally, the stove should be placed in the southeast, and you should face east while cooking.

Example: If your kitchen is in the northeast, you can use warm-colored decor (like red or orange) to counterbalance the energy.

3. Sleeping with Your Head Facing North

Your sleeping direction can significantly impact your health and mental well-being. According to Vastu, the earth's magnetic field flows from north to south, and sleeping with your head in the north can disrupt this energy flow.

Mistake:

- Sleeping with your head facing north, leading to disturbed sleep, anxiety, or health issues.

How to Fix It:

- Adjust your bed so that your head faces south or east while sleeping.
- If relocation isn't possible, place a copper pyramid under the bed to neutralize energy imbalances.

Pro Tip: Incorporate calming colors and minimal electronics in the bedroom to enhance restful sleep.

4. Clutter in the Northeast Corner

The northeast direction is associated with spiritual energy and mental clarity. Clutter in this area can lead to confusion, stagnation, and health issues.

Mistake:

- Storing heavy items, unused furniture, or clutter in the northeast corner.
- Blocking natural light and airflow in this area.

How to Fix It:

- Declutter the northeast corner and keep it light and open.
  - Use spiritual decor, such as a small altar, vision board, or meditation area.
  - Add a water element, such as a bowl with floating flowers, to enhance tranquility.

5. Mirrors in the Wrong Position

Mirrors can amplify energy, but improper placement may lead to stress or negative reflections.

Mistake:

- Mirrors reflecting the bed, causing restlessness.
- Mirrors reflecting the entrance, pushing positive energy out of the home.
- Placing mirrors in the south direction, which may cause instability.

How to Fix It:

- Avoid placing mirrors opposite the bed or main entrance.
- Place mirrors on north or east walls to enhance positive energy flow.
- Ensure mirrors are clean and free from cracks or distortions.

Example: A strategically placed mirror in the dining area can reflect abundance and prosperity.

6. Ignoring the Placement of Toilets

Bathrooms and toilets can drain positive energy if placed in inappropriate locations, particularly in the northeast or center of the home.

Mistake:

- Toilets located in the northeast corner, causing spiritual and mental energy blockages.
- Bathroom doors left open, allowing negative energy to spread.

How to Fix It:

- Keep bathroom doors and toilet lids closed when not in use.
- Place a small bowl of salt in the bathroom to absorb negative energy.
- Hang a mirror on the outside of the bathroom door to deflect negative energy.

Pro Tip: Add indoor plants like peace lilies to maintain a fresh atmosphere.

7. Overcrowding the Center of the Home

The Brahmasthan (center of the home) represents balance and energy flow. Overcrowding this space with furniture or clutter can block the free circulation of energy.

Mistake:

- Placing heavy furniture or decor items in the center of the home.
- Using the center as a storage or dumping area.

How to Fix It:

- Keep the center of your home open and clutter-free.
  - Use neutral colors and soft lighting to create a sense of openness.
  - Avoid placing large or heavy objects in this area.

8. Not Balancing the Five Elements

Vastu is based on harmonizing the five elements—earth, water, fire, air, and space. Imbalances can manifest as health issues, financial troubles, or relationship conflicts.

Mistake:

- Overemphasizing one element (e.g., too much fire or water) while neglecting others.

How to Fix It:

- Use plants and earthy decor to strengthen the earth element.
- Add a water feature in the northeast corner to enhance the water element.

- Incorporate warm lighting and candles in the southeast to activate the fire element.
- Ensure good ventilation and airflow to balance the air element.

Example: Regularly open windows to allow fresh air and energy to circulate throughout your home.
